Use of parallels as agreed maritime boundaries on the west coast of South America

Prepared by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Chile

The boundaries shown in this diagram are depicted according to the following treaties:

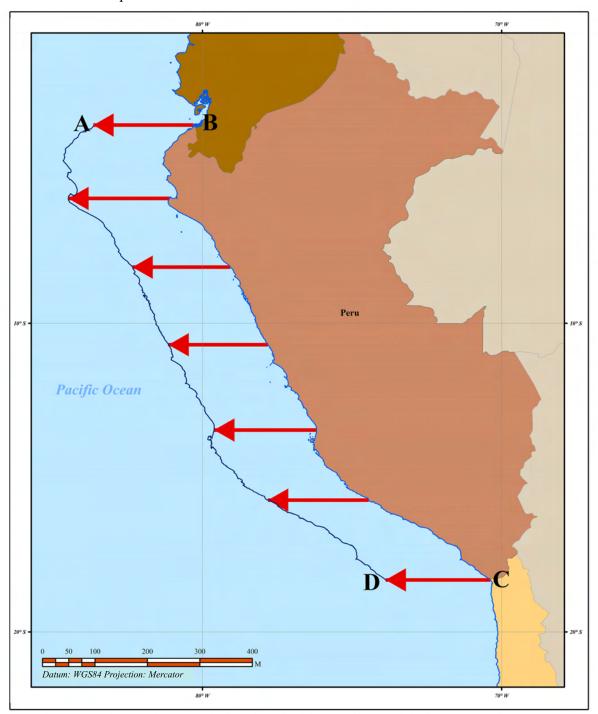

Treaty on the Delimitation of Marine and Submarine Areas and Related Matters between the Republic of Panama and the Republic of Colombia, signed at Cartagena on 20 November 1976, 1074 UNTS 222 (entered into force on 30 November 1977);

Agreement concerning Delimitation of Marine and Submarine Areas and Maritime Co-operation between the Republics of Colombia and Ecuador, signed at Quito on 23 August 1975, 996 UNTS 237 (entered into force on 22 December 1975);

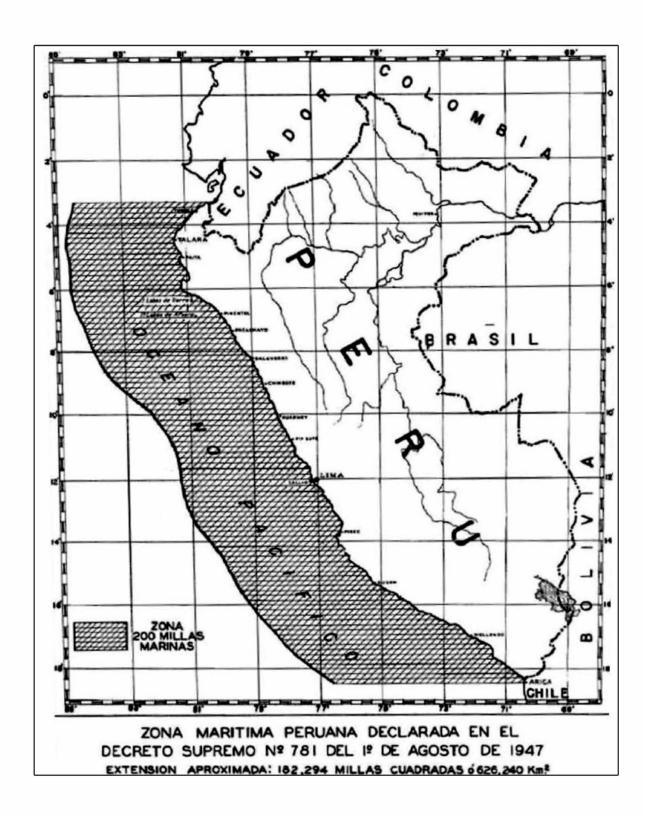

Declaration on the Maritime Zone, signed at Santiago on 18 August 1952 and entered into force upon signature, 1006 UNTS 323.

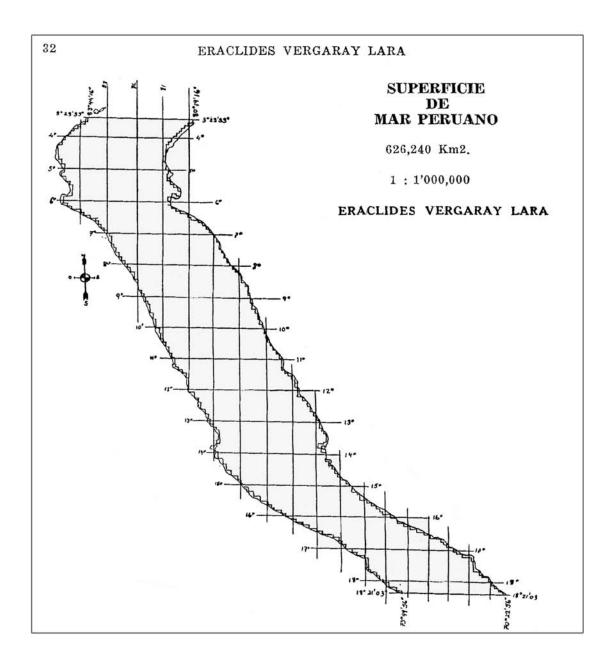

Schematic illustration of the perimeter of Peru's maritime zone in accordance with the 1947 Supreme Decree

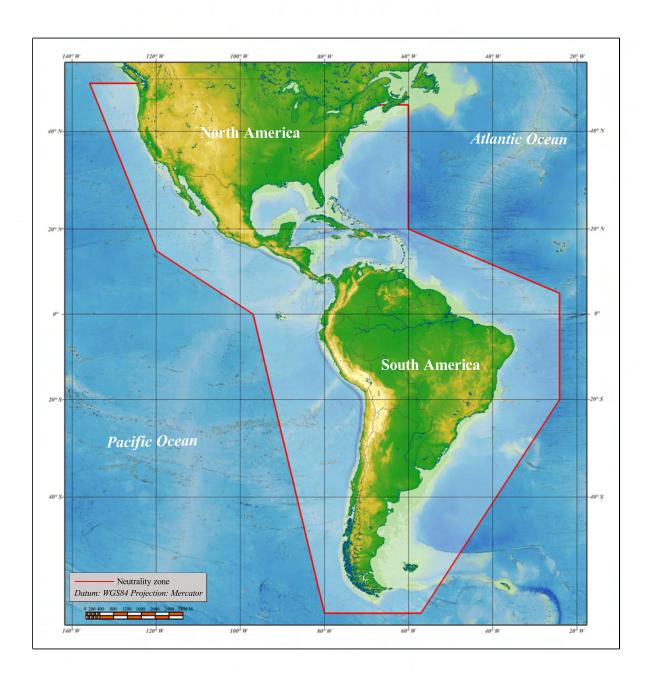

- The red arrows represent the seaward extension of Peru's maritime zone, measured following parallels of latitude. Each arrow is 200M long.
- Line A-D represents the seaward limit constituted by a tracé parallèle.
- Line B-C is the entire extent of Peru's coastline. Point B is the northernmost point of Peru's coastline, and Point C is the southernmost point of Peru's coastline.
- Joining points A, B, C and D provides the perimeter of Peru's maritime zone in the 1947 Supreme Decree.

- Line X-Y is 200M in length and follows a parallel of latitude.
- Point X is the north-western extreme of Chile's maritime zones.
- Point X is also the south-western extreme of Peru's maritime zone as claimed in 1947 and 1952.
- Line A-B is the tracé parallèle of coastline C-D.

The Peruvian sea is part of the Pacific Ocean that washes the coast of Peru. Its boundaries are the parallel of Boca de Capones, to the north and the parallel of Hito No. 1 of La Concordia, to the south and an imaginary line, parallel to the coastline, located at 200M from it (370 Km approximately). Its total area is 617,000 Km².

V.— EL MAR DEL PERU Y LA CORRIENTE PERUANA

1.-EL MAR DEL PERU.

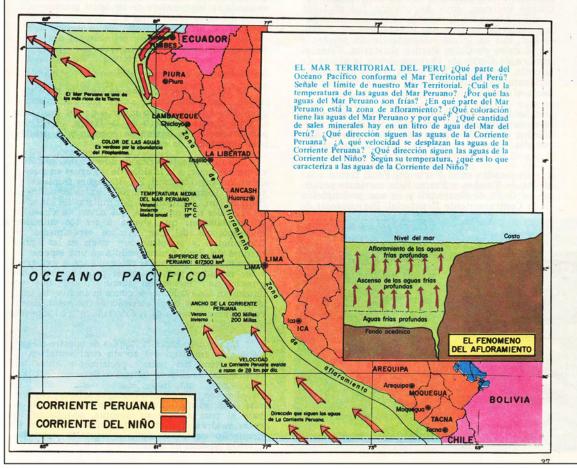

Recibe el nombre de Mar del Perú la porción del Océano Pacífico que baña a nuestro territorio en un ancho de 200 millas marinas (370 Km.). El Mar del Perú está comprendido entre la orilla o playa y una línea paralela a ésta (imaginaria) situada a 200 millas ó 370 Km.

El Perú ejerce su soberanía sobre esta área geográfica basada en su riqueza biológica (es uno de los mares más ricos de la Tierra), que lo convierte en fuente de recursos alimenticios para ruestra población y de materia prima para la industria pesquera, en la que el Perú es primera potencia mundial. Los recursos marinos del Mar del Perú deben ser preservados para su explotación racional en beneficio de toda la nación. A esta decisión del Perú, de extender su soberanía sobre las 200 millas marinas, conjuntamente con Chile y Ecuador, en 1,947, se sumaron con posterioridad muchos otros Estados. En la actualidad se ha convertido en una tesis universal, defendida inicialmente por los países del Tercer Mundo y levada a la práctica por otros, inclusive las potencias altamente desarrolladas. El área aproximada del Mar del Perú es de $617,000~{\rm Km}^2.$

2.—CARACTERISTICAS DE LAS AGUAS DEL MAR PERUANO.

Las aguas del Mar del Perú son de color verdoso por la proliferación o abundancia del fitoplankton o vegetales microscópicos que viven en suspensión. En cuanto a su temperatura, las aguas del Mar Peruano son frías, con una temperatura media anual de 19°C (grados centígrados). En los meses de verano su temperatura sube a una media de 21° y durante el invierno baja a una media de 21° y durante el invierno baja a una media de 17°C. Las aguas del Mar del Perú son frías debido al fenómeno conocido con el nombre de afloramiento, que consiste en el ascenso de las aguas profundas (muy frías) a la superficie. En cuanto a su salinidad, las aguas del Mar del Perú tienen un 35 por mil de salinidad, entre cuyas sales minerales destaca el cloruro de sodio o sal común. Esto significa que en un litro de agua marina hay 35 gramos de sales minerales. Más allá de las 200 millas el océano tiene un color azulino y una temperatura tropical (más alta) y mayor salinidad.
